

The first part of the book is devoted to a general introduction of the subject, and to a description of the various kinds of plants which are found in the different parts of the world. The author then proceeds to a detailed account of the history of the art of agriculture, and of the progress of the various branches of husbandry. He then describes the different kinds of soils, and the manner in which they are cultivated. He also gives a list of the various kinds of plants which are raised in different parts of the world, and the manner in which they are used. The book concludes with a list of the various kinds of animals which are raised in different parts of the world, and the manner in which they are used.