

SHE went to the Garret, she went to the Cellar,
But no trace could be found of the lost little fellow.
She turned up the lid of the tea-table square,
But nothing was seen of the little boy there.
There was only old Tray—all curled up in a heap.
As it seemed much enjoying his afternoon sleep.
